Chris Olsen has been one of the principal objectors to permit building out to the property line, and tried to point out what it would mean to the appearance ings to stick out about six feet in front of others, and also what it would cost property owners in case they wished to add frontage to their buildings. Instances of the latter is evident when it is known that A. J. Joseph, manager of the Grayling Mercantile Co., says that the best price they could get for a one-story front to their store was $5,000, and that they could put up a new, modern building for only $4,000 more.

The council stood divided on

ngled Banner was designated as the national anthem by an Act of Congress, approved on March 3, 1831. It was written by Francis Scott Key after he had witnessed the British bombardment of Fort McHenry in Baltimore, in 1814. The words of this stirring song were sung to the tune of "Anacreon in Heaven" and immediately became popular and it was regarded as the national anthem though it was not made legally so until 1931.

Spending is Popular

Increased wages, higher prices, and a return of good times have combined to put the legislature in a pleasant mood. Solons have been spending money freely. In fact, the state budget will likely be out of balance as a result.

Rev. Kjolhede was loved by his congregation and by the people of Grayling in general during his pastorate here. All through his life he had a very interesting and useful career. In his earlier days he held many important positions in the Danish Church Association of America He was president of the association for many years and at one time many years ago when it was at a crisis, through the timey and able effort of Rev. Kjolhede it was saved and today is doing a great work in church service. Rev. Kjolhede was ordaining minister of theological graduates for a long number of ears or until his age made it impossible to continue. He saw the need of Danish schools and it was through his efforts that Grandview College at Des Moines, Iowa, was established in 1896. During his pastorate here he also held school for Danish

Bass Fishing Season Opens Tomorrow

Fishing for black bass, bluegills, sunfish and warmouth bass in all the inland and Great Lakes waters under Michigan's jurisdiction becomes legal in Michigan Friday, June 25, conservation authorities announced today.

On that date all the inland lakes now closed entirely to sport-fishing to give the species above-named protection during their reproduction season, will automatically open to fishing.

The season on large and smallmouth black bass has been closed in Michigan since December 31 and the season on bluegills, sunfish and warmouth bass April 30.
All regulations governing lake fishing remain the same as last year. The changes in fishing laws now being considered by the state legislature, if enacted into law, would probably not become effective until 1938.

THURSDAY, JUNE 24, 1937 DANGEROUS CORNER

Have you ever stood on the corner of Michigan avenue and Maple street and observed how cars come from across the lower bridge and tear down Maple street without regard to the busy thoroughfare at Michigan avenue? And even people travelling on the avenue take a lot of chances when they cross Maple Street. While neither is a stop street yet common regard for safety should prompt one to slow up at that place.

Cars tear down these streets many times with utter disregard to the safety of themselves or others. The state law says that 20 miles an hour in the residential district may be permissible and would be safe for everyone. Must we wait until some child is run over before we take notice of some of the traffic violations that go on every day in our city?

Japanese Rooster Needs Four Train Bearers

Four Japanese children seem to get a big thrill from acting as train-bearers to this prize rooster, held by the proud owner. This type of fowl is common in rural areas of Japan, where the hobby of the farm folk is raising long-tailed chickens. The longer the tail, the more valuable the bird. They take extraordinary care of their pets to preserve the luxuriant appendages.

GRAPHIC GOLF By BEST BALL

WATCH THE FEET

FOOTWORK plays a large part in many competitive sports and golf is no exception. Balance, the ability to pivot, to shift the weight smoothly and easily are assets in the game. For example the foot action of three stages covering the complete swing is illustrated above. In the first one, the stance at address is shown. Here the feet are well placed to balance the body action which is to follow, the toes pointed obliquely outwards to facilitate the body turn. This makes the backstroke easier of execution and longer, also provides for a free movement of the down stroke through and past the ball.

In the second panel the weight has been shifted largely to the right foot, denoting the top of the stroke The position of the feet remains the same but the left instep and left knee are now turned in toward the right. The balance at this stage is so well managed that even were the entire stroke stopped for a moment at this point it would not mean a collapse of the position. The last figure shows the footwork at the completion of the follow through. Here the weight has been transferred almost entirely to the left leg and the left hip is well around out of the path of the stroke. This is essential, too, for if the left hip fails to pivot around a collapse of the left arm must result, spoiling

Where Our Flag Was Made

HE historic incident of the ori gin of the flag is one of the dramatic stories of Revolution. ary days, featuring one of the more colorful women of colonial history the widow of John Ross, upholster-er, who fell early in the Revolution. A storehouse of munitions he was guarding exploded. Betsy Ross has been pictured as the Florence Night-ingale of the Revolution.

To this brick house at 239 Arch street, Philadelphia, came one day in June, 1776, a committee of Gen. George Washington, Col. George Ross, uncle of Betsy's late husband, and the wealthy Robert Morris chairman of the secret commission on supplies for the colonial forces They requested Betsy Ross to make the flag according to a design given her by General Washington, and which was officially adopted by the congress the following year.

The old house is a two-and-a-half story structure, 17 feet wide, with but two rooms on the ground floor. At the front was the upholstery shop, and in the rear, connected by a hallway, was the sitting room used as a dining room on gala oc casions. Beneath this was the base ment kitchen, reached by a winding stairs. Bedrooms were on the sec-ond and dormer floors. The living room still has the large fireplace with the white mantel framed with the original blue Dutch tile; the room was originally painted blue, as shown by the removal of many coats of naint.

An inch-by-inch study of the build ing has revealed many changes since the flag incident. The front entrance had been shifted from one side of the building to the other; a chimney and three fireplaces had been closed up; four windows had been made into doors: the origi nal floor of the basement kitchen was found ten inches beneath the present brick flooring.

All of the original building is be ing carefully preserved. Thus it was discovered that six doors with original L-shaped hinges of colonial make remain; two sets of colonial shutters, of spliced wood, panelled inside, with authentic hinges were discovered on the rear of the building. Two second-story front win dows and a dormer window were originals even to the small panes of

Flag Code Provides for Reverence to the Emblem

THE following extract from the flag code, providing for reverence to the national emblem, adopt ed by the National Flag Conference held in Washington in 1923 and 1924 gives the form of the salute:

"During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag or when the flag is passing in a parade or in a re-view, all persons present should face the flag, stand at attention and salute. Those present in uniform should render the right hand salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the head-dress with right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the flag in the moving column is rendered at the moment the flag passes."

NEEDS PROTECTION

Elag Was Made

THE Betsy Ross House in Philadelphia, where the first American flag was made, is being restored to its colonial condition, through the generosity of A. Alwater Kent. For many years this house has been visited by thousands of tourists annually.

Falling rapidly into ruin, the dilapidated condition of the patriotic shrine was brought to Mr. Kent's attention through a newspaper article which pic-tured the falling plaster, the leaking roof and general con-dition of disrepair.

The living-room, shown, still-has the gargeous fireplace with white mantel framed with the original blue Dutch tile. The room was originally decorated in blue.

The Orator of the Revolution

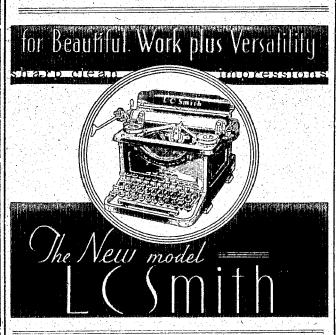

"Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death."-Patrick Henry.

FORBID it, Almighty God!-" thundered Patrick Henry in the Virginia Convention at Richmond, in 1775, in a speech typical of "the explosive temper of the time"—"I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty, or give me death!" The orator of the Revolution had been found. It was Patrick Henry who established before the American people that government was a contract between King and people and that the violation of such contract by the King was truly an illegal act.

It reads:

"D'r Gerry, In consequence of an order of Congress a public levee was held from 12 to 3 ocl'k at the House of the President at which were present the members of Congress, Officers of the Great Depart ments, Foreign Ministers, etc., etc. The Cincinnati are in the highest prosperity, they celebrate the Day a splendor exceeding any thing within the practice of Govern ment-of course draw the Huzzas and admiration of the Multitude. the celebration: "The morning was ushered in by the ringing of bells and a discharge of cannon. At 12 o'clock a grand procession (headed by city watchmen and closed by citizens) to the house of his excellency the Governor—and from thence to the house of his excellency the president of Congress, where the compliments of the day were first paid to his exwards by his worship the mayor, in behalf of the citizens of New York. CONGRESS' FIRST SITTING

THERE were two reasons why the Constitution framers provided for such a long lapse of time between election of a congress and its first sitting. The chief reason was that the framers believed it unwise to have legislators take office soon after election because of the danger of hasty action. It was felt that time should be allowed for the heat of the contest to cool. The secondary reason was that considerable time was required for members to travel from distant

PETER RABBIT WATCHES FOR SIGNS

SOME people never see things be cause they never look for them Peter Rabbit isn't that kind. My goodness, no! Peter is all the time looking and listening. You see, he is dreadfully afraid that he will miss something. So every minute that he is awake he is looking and listening. It was this way more than ever now. Sister South Wind had arrived and said that Mistress Spring was not far behind, and that she had come to waken all the sleepers so that they would be ready to greet Mistress Spring when she did arrive.

What puzzled Peter was how gen tle Sister South Wind, whose voice

He Would Carefully Cover Her Over Again With the Dead Leaves That She Might Not Catch Cold.

was hardly more than a whisper waked all the sleepers. Rough Brother North Wind had roared and whistled and bowled through the Green Forest and over the Green Meadows all the long winter without waking one. In fact, the louder he roared the farther into dreamland the sleepers seemed to go. But when the gentle Sister South wandered through the Green Forest and over the Green Meadows calling in just the lowest, softest voice, Wake up, wake up, you sleepers! Come open wide your peepers!

why, one after another they did wake up. Peter couldn't understand it, and finally he gave up trying to. But it was great fun to go about watching for signs that the sleepers had heard gentle Sister South Wind. Peter would listen with one long ear against a maple tree. He would hear just the softest little sound under the bark, so soft that you and I couldn't hear it if we tried. Then

It was the sap running up to all the branches and out to the tiniest twigs of the maple tree that Peter heard, and he knew that the maple tree was awake. Then he would go over to swampy place where the ice had melted away and hold his nose while he peeped into the brown hood of the skunk cabbage to see if there were any signs of flowers there. I had a dreadful smell, and yet it made Peter feel glad all over, because it meant that the queer little plant was awake. Then he would go up in the Green Forest to a warm, sunny place he knew of and there he would pull away the dead leaves of last summer until he found a tiny, furry cap peeping up above the ground. Then he knew that dainty little Hepatica was awake. He would carefully cover her up again with the dead leaves that she might not catch cold, after which he would kick up his heels in the funniest way, just because it made him feel so good.

Peter would kick up his heels for

Everywhere there were signs, it you had eyes to see and ears to hear them. And Peter had both. The Laughing Brook, which had been silent all winter because Jack Frost had bound it with ice, was laughing a great roar of a laugh, for its banks were very full, and that was a sign. The brown buds on the willows which all winter long Jack Frost had pinched his hardest and failed to open, had split their little brown jackets at the first touch of the soft fingers of gentle Sister South Wind and out of them had popped little gray pussies, and that was a sign. Farmer Brown had begun to clean up his cornfield, and that was a sign. There were signs everywhere, and every one of them made Peter feel

But most of all Peter listened for something that he longed to hear. Every little while he would sit up and listen and listen, with his long ears standing straight up. Sometimes he would think he heard it. but he couldn't be sure. Then he would hold his breath and listen and listen and listen. What was he listening for? Why, for the loveliest sound he knows of—the voice of Winsome Bluebird.

"If I could only hear that," sighed Peter, "then I would know for sure that Mistress Spring is almost here, for Winsome Bluebird is her herald and she is never far behind." And this is how Peter Rabbit happened to forget all about those strange tracks he had found deep in the Green Forest.

Base Ball As It Should Be Played.

(Interviewing John Kobs, var ty baseball coach at Michigan State college, by Max Henkel, first string pitcher. Fourth of a series of six articles).

that if he intercepts the ball as producing fault of practically far in as possible, he may save game-winning fractions of seconds," says Coach Kobs in describing infielding.

"Accuracy and correct position, though very important, are more easily taught but are to no avail if the runner gets to the bag be-fore the ball. Correct balance and timing in fielding slow roll-ers is a thing that needs much practice and is very essential."

A group of varsity men were practicing, and as they made their plays, Kobs nodded his approval or rejection of form they showed. As a player got up to the plate and started batting out fungos to the infielders, Kobs volunteered to indicate the correct playing methods.

A sizzling ball, taking its first hard bounce just at the pitcher's box, drew but a half hearted attempt by the hurler to stop it.

"Now that," said Kobs, "is bad playing. A player should not be afraid of the ball. Get in front of it. Stop it at any rate, even if you have to dive at at,' he instructed the rookie after calling him over to the side lines.

"And, though it would not seem probable, there are a good many potential infielders who don't know how to catch a ball," the coach said, "when catching a ball, the hand should be cupped slightly, with the fingers of each hand pointing either up or down. If the fingers are down, the little fingers should be right together. If the reverse is true, the thumbs should be together. This eliminates the danger of balls slipping through the hands and out into safe territory.

"Major leaguers don't always get in front of the ball in fielding it, but a novice always should Those boys who are up in there now started out by parking themselves right in front of the pill, not off to one side, so that they might try for a spectacular catch, and perhaps miss it, and lose a game for the home team," advised Kobs.

"When the ball is caught, don't wait until the spirit moves you to throw. It should become me-chanical after the ball is fielded to balance and throw in one motion. Get the ball away as quickly as possible so that the first baseman will have plenty of chance to catch the ball if throw is poor. An infielder must also go after all ground balls regardless of his record. Never give up and allow a ground ball froll through for a scratch hit."

I haven't forms of red and white, to wellarger cities of the state, due to the antiquated and wholly in-adequate sewage systems then in use.

These municipalities, however, were unable to remedy the situation as they were without funds to construct such improvements and, due to tax limitations, were unable to raise additional funds by bond issues which would affect such limitations.

Several municipalities have been involved in litigation for years over the sanitary disposal of sewage upon private lands, and, in one instance, a municipality was ordered by court decree to install a sanitary system, but due to adverse bond markets it was unable to comply with the decree until the P.W.A. came to ingl its assistance with sorely needed funds. The necessities of this case stimulated progressive legis-lation, making it possible for a borrower to issue revenue bonds which are secured only by a mortgage upon the revenues of she fished, but the lure of her the project and does not, in any trout rod won out, and she cordial and pleasing manner.

P.W.A. ()
In practically all cities in Michigan where sewage disposal plants have been built or are under construction the problem of financing the work has been serious, if not embarrassing, for many years. Each case has presented some special problem for the community, but all of the cities have had many things in common. In some instances, the protection of water supply was paramount; in others, the health menace caused by bathing in polluted water was of prime importance; in still other instances, the damage and inconvenience caused to downriver communities was the chief complaint. These, and other reasons, caused the various municipalities to spend considerable thought and effort to the solution of their problem. Through the financial aid offered by the P.W.A., cities have been able to finance the construction of their sewage treatment plants, and have made a permanent investment which pay large dividends in increased health and happiness to their citizens.

These plans are the achievement of the most modern, sanitary engineering practice. They are designed to serve not only present but future needs and therefore represent a lasting value to their respective com-

Each year we see more and more of these fair fisherwomen so the men have some real rivals, and they are not all 'worm fishermen" as quoted from fly fishing, and doing it to advantage.

Variation of Climate The seasonal variation of climate outside the tropics is due, to the fact that the earth's axis of rotation is not perpendicular to the plane of its orbit around the sun, but is tilted about 23 degrees out of vertical. Consequently in the course of a year each hemisphere receives alternately more and less sunshine than does the other.

On the invitation of Secretary Marston, this editor was privileged to join the group upon its arrival at Grayling and remained with them until Sunday night, leaving with Mr. Marston for their respective homes.

It Was A Great Trip. Seeing Michigan from a railroad train or even from an auto mobile could not compare with the advantage of riding in a brand new Greyhound motor bus. over an itinerary laid out and planned by experts for the pur-pose of showing the vistiors what Michigan has to offer. First, the motor bus was the last thing in design, elegance, equipment genius could devise. The finest railroad pullman cars do not excel them for comfort and elegance.

All along the line of travel crowds of people were awaiting the arrival of the bus with its distinguished guests, either to greet them at cities where they stopped, or to give them a cheery hand wave as they passed by.

Grand Hotel was at the dock to meet the visitors and at once captured them by his most cordial and pleasing manner. everyone who is acquainted with him likes him. Many of the visitors were at the island for the first time. The beauty of the place manifiest itself long before the steamer reached the dock. It is a grand sight from the steamer and a picture that is more inspiring with grandeur.

While the season for opening the Grand was still a week away, special help was engaged to handle the hotel service for this Only workmen were hurrying to get the decorating for the lobby finished for the occasion. Those who have visited the Grand before will be struck by the new beauty of its lobby. The decorain silver and black and furnishings in complete harmony make this one of the most delightful spots anywhere to betrout. At first I thought Pat was hold. The grand ball room too paying some attention to her had undergone a most pleasing style, for she certainly looks at transformation, in color scheme

> The huge dining room was still a tangle of decorators' ladders was being newly decorated. Other rooms in the huge hotel also were being redecorated. The huge porch, the longest in the world, was shiny with new paint and except for new luxurious carpetings and placing of the porch furniture and fixtures this was ready to go into service. By the end of this week the Grand will be in perfect order to receive guests and the big summer season will open in real earnest Signs on the office desk "This hotel is closed 30% of the time." That means a lot of business must be crowded into a short time in order to make the place pay its way. The world is learning to its advantage that Mackinac Island is not surpassed in charm and historic interest anywhere and it is fast becoming summer convention place of America and the playground of people from everywhere.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

MEN who have to argue with taxi drivers really should be on leashes. We've read in psychol ogy books that they usually do it to impress their girl friends . . that it's an expression of their masculine power or something.

Well, it doesn't impress us. It's a sure way for a likely young man to become very unlikely as far as we're concerned. We don't like to have every one on the street staring at us. And anyhow, we're fond of taxi drivers.

Walking away from the scene may show disapproval but it never cures the boy friend. He comes running after us to tell us proudly of how he "told that guy off." Telling him we don't like his behavior usually makes him think that under neath we really think it's swell. We're just being feminine.

In fact, our experience convinces us that men who yell at taxi drivers are simply hopeless. We're through with them: And we hereby urge a national boycott against them. That ought to show them. WNU Service.

Canning Demonstration June 30

A well-filled pantry shelf was recently found to be worth $461 compared with actual retail prices to one family of six.

At the present time, many Crawford county housewives are busy adding to the family pocketbook by preserving fruits and vegetables for winter use. To inswer inquiries concerning safe and sure canning methods, Alice Hertzler, District Home Extension Agent has arranged to give canning demonstration at Grayling on June 30 at 2 P. M. in the home economics room of the High school.

All modern types of home canning will be discussed including water-bath, oven, and pressure cooker methods of processing. Time saving suggestions and the information concerning prevention of spoilage will be given. All women interested in home canning are invited.

55 RECEIVING OLD-AGE RE-

The 55 persons in Crawford county who received Old Age Assistance benefits in April were paid a total of $895.00, according to figures released today by James G. Bryant, State Welfare Director, it was announced by Alice Gibbons, county investigator for the Old Age Assistance Bureau. The average benefit amounted to $16.27.

In the state as a whole, 34,463 persons received a total of $577. 483.41, an average of $16.76 per recipient. This average ranged 4.11 in Oscoda county to $18.23 in Washtenaw county.

Although Wayne county had the second highest average benefit ($18.12), the state average with Wayne excluded would be reduced by only thirty-four cents. Twelve counties had average payments in excess of $17.00 and seven had averages less than $15.00. The remaining 64 counties hovered around the state

Miss Lela M. Rohm, district supervisor, together with Miss Alice Gibbons, county visitor for Crawford and Roscommon counties, were in Grayling Wednesday investigating the work here. Miss Rohm says that 70 is still the age when benefits may begin, and that "black and white" proofs of one's age are required. Verbal claims are not acceptable as proofs of one's age. Persons must be dependent in order to receive assistance and wherever possible children must assist.

In Roscommon county there are 34 persons on the old age benefit list and the average amount paid is $16.60. The total amount paid out in that county is $564.50, according to Miss Rohm.

The eight counties comprising this district are Crawford, Che boygan, Presque Isle, Alpena, Alcona, Montmorency, Otsego and Roscommon.
